THREE MORE IN HALL OF FAME

Ohio Journalistic Pioneers Are Placed on Roll of Honor at O. S. U.

LOUIS BRUSH IS SPEAKER

Eulogizes One of Three Honored Men at Annual Ceremony.

Three pioneers of Ohio journalism were honored last night by Buckeye newspapermen when their names were added to the roll of honor in the Ohio Journalism Hall of Fame at Ohio State university.

The men thus honored were Richard F Outcalt, James Wilson and W. I Chamberlain. Wilson was a grandfather of the late President Wilson. He was eulogized by Louis Brush, president of Brush-Moore Newspapers, Inc., of which The Marion Star is a member newspaper. Wilson was long connected with the Western Herald, a newspaper, of which the Steubenville Herald-Star, also a Brush-Moore paper, is a descendant.

Outcalt was the creator of the "Buster Brown" comic strips and Chamberlain was an agricultural journalist.

Mr. Brush's address eulogizing Wilson's newspaper career was delivered in the Faculty Club of Ohio State university before more than 100 attending the sixth annual dinner, a part of the ceremony of honoring the titans of journalism.

Reviewing Mr. Wilson's career in Ohio journalism, Mr. Brush spoke as follows.

"Election of James Wilson to the Ohio Journalism Hall of Fame gives opportunity tonight to honor the memory of the late President Woodrow Wilson's grandfather. This tribute is given not on that basis, however, but in appreciation of his outstanding contributions to early history of Ohio journalism.

"James Wilson came to America in 1807 when he was 20, from Londonderry, Ireland, and immediately became associated in Philadelphia with the Aurora, one of the most famous of early American newspapers. Its editor was William Duane, who devoted his paper to the Jeffersonian interests. It played a large part in bringing the Democratic party into power.

"In 1812 when Duane was absorbed in the activities of the war with England, young Jimmy Wil-

LIQUOR REGULATION IS KNOTTY PROBLEM

Tri-State Conference Tackles Job of Finding Proper Control Method.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 4—Just what to do about the sale of "hard liquor" by the glass in hotels, restaurants and clubs when and if repeal comes has given a tri-state liquor control conference a knotty problem.

More than 100 delegates from Ohio, Michigan and Pennsylvania started yesterday to exchange liquor control ideas and to try to work out a reciprocal system for regulating liquor traffic across state lines after repeal.

The problem of selling hard liquor came up in a discussion as to whether dispensing of distilled liquors should be confined to government owned and operated stores. J. Beamish, personal representative of Governor Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, declared "sale of hard liquor by the glass brings us perilously close to the saloon," but added that "people drink to be convivial, and if we clamp down a too strict law people are going to drink in defiance of the law."

Renog Hoag Marietta hotel proprietor invited to attend the conference by Governor White, at whose suggestion the meeting was called, said hotels should be allowed to sell liquor in order to "realize some returns" on large investments.

FORD ACTS TO COMPLY WITH HOURS OF CODE

Begins Layoffs at Plant To Bring Workers Down to Maximum.

CUTS 7 DAYS OFF WORK

Spokesman Says Step Taken Under Mandatory Provision of Law.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Nov. 4—Officials of the Ford Motor Co have announced that, in order to comply with their interpretation of the provisions of the NRA automotive code, weekly layoffs would be instituted in the Rouge plant at Dearborn to bring the workers within the maximum 35 hour average working week specified in the code.

This will be accomplished a spokesman for the company said last night by laying off 9100 men for a seven-day period next week, following it with one week layoffs of 9,000 other workers in succeeding weeks until each will have reduced his working time since last September when the code was signed by seven days.

"The company is taking this mandatory step in compliance with the new prohibition against work in this country," a spokesman for the Ford company said.

On 40-Hour Basis

The Rouge plant has been in operation on a five-day, 40-hour week basis for some time, and officials said that the contemplated layoffs will reduce the average work week for all to 35 hours by the first of the year. The last official employment figures placed the number of workers at the Rouge plant at 43,000.

Referring to the step the Ford spokesman said, "We don't want to do it but the law requires it."

The revised automobile code approved by President Roosevelt on Aug 27, under the heading "hours" reads in part:

"It is made a provision of this code that employers shall so operate their plants that the average employment of all factory employes shall not exceed 35 hours a week. It will be necessary at times to operate for substantially longer hours, but no employe shall be employed for more than six days or 48 hours in any one week, and all such peaks shall be absorbed in such average."

Harry G Baker of 350 Mary street has been ordered to appear in federal court at Toledo Tuesday to show why he should not be held for contempt of court for allegedly stealing or converting electric current of the C. D & M Electric Co by a jumper on a meter at his residence according to an Associated Press dispatch from Toledo.

Baker is deputy clerk of courts here.

U. S. MAY RENOUNCE EXTRADITION TREATY

Failure To Get Return of Insull Basis for Action.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 — The government was understood today to be contemplating instructing its minister at Athens to renounce the extradition treaty with Greece, as a result of the two failures to extradite Samuel Insull.

It was indicated at the state department this government feels the extradition treaty is useless to the United States because the Greek authorities have twice denied Insull applications.

Expectations were that a cablegram stating this government's position will go forward immediately to the Minister Lincoln MacVeigh, who will act in accordance with its instructions. There were indications these instructions will be made public tomorrow.

Greek courts had denied two requests for Insull's extradition. The first was on a Cook county indictment and the second on charges of violating federal bankruptcy laws.

DENIES GUILT IN BRIBE CASE

Herner's Attorney Reserves Right To Change Plea; Bond Is $2,000

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 4—State Senator William H Herner, chairman of the senate finance committee, pleaded not guilty today to an indictment charging him with soliciting a $1,500 bribe from the legislative morticians' lobby.

The plea was entered provisionally, the senator's attorney, Russell Knepper, said, so that it might be withdrawn and a special plea entered to substance or form of the indictment.

"We waive the reading of the indictment," Knepper said, "and at this time enter a plea of not guilty. I say this at this time because we may desire to withdraw the plea and move specially to the indictment."

The attorney said Senator Herner, a Democrat, had not yet seen the indictment but would waive the 24 hour provision that requires that period to elapse between the time the indictment is served and the arraignment had.

Judge John R. King of the Franklin county courts set Herner's bond at $2,000, which was furnished immediately.

Herner was indicted Wednesday by a Franklin county grand jury called by Prosecutor Donald Hoskins to inquire into the activities of legislative lobbyists.

BACKERS OF CUBAN PRESIDENT SIT TIGHT

Refuse To Accept Resignation; Oppositionists Continue Demands.

By The Associated Press

HAVANA, Nov. 4—Representatives of all factions which originally backed President Grau San Martin today refused to accept his resignation and again ratified him as president.

After a night-long session at the home of Sergio Carbos, the group announced it not only had refused the President's resignation, but had not even considered the resignation of his cabinet.

When he went to the meeting at midnight, Grau carried in his pocket the resignation of his cabinet.

At the same time it was made known that the student directory, which has been a strong element in the president's support, had decided to dissolve itself and withdraw from the government.

Meanwhile, in another meeting, oppositionists decided to renew their demands that Carlos Mendieta, Nationalist leader, attempt to form a new government.

FARM PROGRAM TAKEN DIRECT TO ROOSEVELT

Mid-West Governors, Stirred by Unrest at Home, Urge Quick Action

WALLACE REJECTS PLAN

"Up To President Now" Leaders Assert, Asking Him To Reverse Cabinet Head.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4—Five midwest governors stirred by new reports of farm unrest in their states today sought action by President Roosevelt to put into effect within 30 days a drastic program of price-fixing and marketing for agriculture, production and marketing.

They said their program had been rejected by Secretary Wallace and his aids while Wallace said he was withholding a decision pending a study to determine whether the program was "workable and enforceable."

The governors asserted their purpose of a second meeting with the President was to request him "to overrule his farm advisers and employ their method of achieving quick increases in farm prices."

Their new program included modifications aimed to meet objections by farm officials. As redrafted it provides:

Price-Fixing Wanted

Fixing prices of beef cattle, hogs, corn, wheat, milk and butterfat at parity.

Regimenting farm production by giving each farmer a quota to produce of the quantities of these six commodities required by consumers. Quotas would be based on the past volume of each farmer's production.

Licensing of processors and handlers of these products to force them to pay fixed prices.

EFFORTS TO REVISE WAR DEBT DROPPED

No Agreement Indicated After Conference With President.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4—President Roosevelt and the British debt negotiators concluded their conversations today with every indication no agreement had been reached on a revision.

A final effort to stave off termination of the debt discussions proved fruitless.

The President went over the whole situation for an hour with the British ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, and Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, the chairman of the British debt mission.

Afterwards it was learned that a statement soon would be issued.

Leaving the White House Sir Ronald said he had no statement to make.

It was ascertained however, that there would be no more talks by the President with the British negotiators and that a declaration would be forthcoming probably next week.

Statements by Two Mayoralty Nominees

BY W. C. PHILLIANS
Republican candidate for reelection

IN the last campaign the Republican candidates pledged themselves to an economical and business-like administration of the city's affairs. It was our purpose, first, to place the city on a "pay as you go" basis, and second at the earliest possible time to begin reducing the city bonded debt. The first of these objects has been attained. The city of Marion will meet its current obligations this year. That is all obligations that have been made in 1933 will be met before the year closes. These are facts that can be verified.

The city has been carrying a past due indebtedness made during past years of more than $150,000. If the Republican administration is retained in power we have reason to believe that we will soon be able to begin reduction of this indebtedness. As a matter of fact we hope to have a small amount to apply on this debt at the close of the current year. The administration has been working to better the credit of the city and to place the city in good financial condition. When it is remembered that more than 50 cents out of every $1 received by the city through taxation goes to paying interest on the city's debt it must be realized how important it is that we accomplish this end. Just in proportion as the debt is reduced will we have more money for operating the city's business. The present administration has issued no new bonds and has not, therefore, increased the city's bonded indebtedness. The Republican organization stands pledged to continue an economical administration of the city's affairs. Notwithstanding the economies which have been ef-

BY CLARENCE A. BOLIN
Democratic Candidate

TO the end that voters may be in position to know my views as a candidate for mayor, I submit the following platform together with brief explanations of its several planks.

First municipal ownership and operation of all public utilities that are practical and feasible in any operation this is important as an economy measure. The public utility cost to the city of Marion is approximately $86,000 a year. Outside of the amount paid by private consumers. Other cities own their utilities and operate them successfully. Marion can and should do likewise.

Second a building code covering the construction of all types of buildings and rigid enforcement of it. This is of importance to home owners and prospective home owners as a protection against unscrupulous builders. Enforcement can be accomplished without adding one cent to taxation.

Third, abolition of all unnecessary positions. This plank ranks high as an economy measure. Public business needs to be raised to a higher plane of efficiency, such as a successful private business enjoys. There is no need to maintain positions in the city of Marion after the positions have become obsolete and unnecessary. Marion has a number of such positions that should be abolished in the interest of economy and fairness to the taxpayers. Some of these were necessary before the creation of the municipal court now they are absolutely useless.

Fourth, complete reorganization of the service, safety and welfare departments. Safety and welfare departments of our city are antiquated and should be discarded.

Spiece Third in Husking Competition

Earl Spiece of near Kirkpatrick one of Marion county's two contestants in the fourth annual state corn husking contest yesterday on the Henry farm near Norwalk, finished in third place in the standing corn contest, according to news dispatches today. The contests were watched by 15,000 persons.

Spiece husked 21 bushels, 12 06 pounds in the husk and 20 bushels of actual corn. The winner of the standing corn competition, William Anderson of Ross county, husked 21 bushels, 84½ pounds. Everett Ford of Defiance county took second place. Anderson will be sent to Nebraska to compete in the national shucking contest next Thursday.

Ralph F. Augenstein of near Waldo, Marion county's shock corn champion, also was entered in the contest but did not place.

Spiece's feat is the first time a Marion county contestant has won a place in a state contest. He was champion of the county last year in addition to winning this year's county meet.

Lester Goodyear of Delaware county won second place in the shock corn contest, husking 14 bushels, 68 pounds. First place was taken by George Reisinger of Ross county. John Gillespie of Licking county was third.

In addition to a field day program of exhibits and educational features, the crowd at the contest was addressed by L. J. Taber, master of the national grange. The high spot of his talk was a declaration that a better way out for the farmer "than violence and bloodshed is brains, organization, cooperation and collective bargaining."

Quite a number of Marion county residents, including members of the Waldo Young Men's Farming club, attended the contest and field day.

FIVE CENT TAX ON CORN IS FAVORED

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 — Farm adjustment administration officials indicated today that an initial processing tax of five cents a bushel would be levied on corn.

It was said, however, that an initial tax of eight cents had also been proposed and that the matter had not been definitely settled.

Recently, the farm administration announced that the processing tax on corn would be 25 cents a bushel, but a hearing was called immediately afterward to determine whether this figure might not result in a heavy decrease in consumption of corn products.

PROPOSES CONSTANT WALL STREET GUARD

Committee Would Watch Stock Exchange To Correct Market Abuses.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 Creation of a permanent senate committee to keep a constant watch over Wall street's operations is being considered seriously by members of the stock market investigating committee and may be recommended in their final report.

With the present inquiry nearing its scheduled end, committee members said today they realized it would be impossible to write legislation to prevent repetition of the evils they have found and that indefinite extension of the investigative powers would be desirable.

It is not their idea that the committee should be in continuous session, but that it should have the authority whenever the occasion arose to inquire into specific cases.

Many legislative reforms probably will be recommended. Committee members added, however, that these changes cannot be expected to eliminate, permanently and finally, abuses in banking and stock exchange practices.

Some committee members said a permanent senate committee could recommend legislation to curb abuses as they arose and have a powerful effect in preventing undesirable practices from developing because of fear of exposure.

RACE BETTING GETS $94,000 FOR STATE

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 4 Legal betting on horse racing in Ohio last summer, for the first time in history, brought a "cut" of $94,023.19 to the state treasury, more than half coming from the Coney Island race track at Cincinnati which yielded $51,825.74 from its betting machines.

Next year's receipts, the commission believes, ought to be well past the $100,000 mark.

What does YOUR CITY ELECTION mean to you?

It means health and well-being of YOUR home and YOUR family.

It means the spending of YOUR tax money.

It means the care of YOUR streets and alleys, the collection and disposition of garbage and refuse over all the city—the maintenance of YOUR City Hospital—the protection of YOUR life and property through Police and Fire Departments.

These are YOUR first interests and all these are involved in the coming city election.

Mayor Phillians and the present administration have "carried on" during the last two years under extremely difficult circumstances and MAINTAINED EVERY FUNCTION OF THE CITY DEPARTMENTS EFFICIENTLY. Value of Friendship

A SERMONETTE

BY REV. FRANKLIN G. MARKLEY

Pastor Epworth M. E. Church

[illegible] a text from [illegible] verse number four [illegible] and there I found these words: [illegible] Proverbs 18:24.

WHAT [illegible] are we worth? [illegible] everything [illegible] something. This [illegible] friend [illegible] fringe as [illegible] possessions. This [illegible] true of all [illegible] between man and man. To be a genuine friend signifies that [illegible] has been willing [illegible] pay an inestimable [illegible] the confidence of [illegible] regarded as a friend.

Jesus of Nazareth was not a [illegible] but a friend. He was a friend to men of all ranks and walks of life especially to the lowly and oppressed. Jesus is our best friend.

He understands us so well, and has such a way of putting up with our frailties. When a man has trouble, he needs friends. In time of adversity, affliction and bereavement man needs the strength and love of the loving friendly God. When we lose [illegible] in death, we cannot find comfort anywhere but by confiding in the promises of Christ and in the all wise goodness of the Heavenly Father. When we lose property, we need our friends who have lost similarly, to come around us with real sympathy. When sorrow, grief, and loss comes to a household it is comforting to have friends, who by their experiences of life's sorrows, to voluntarily come in to share in our misfortunes, and sympathize. God is a loving and sympathetic friend.

What a difference too frequently prevails between man and man! Too many of us in our [illegible] those who [illegible] position, [illegible] said [illegible] of the [illegible] friendship to [illegible] Another [illegible] of your [illegible] the confidence [illegible] the secret [illegible] up. Remember [illegible] hath no [illegible] man [illegible] friend [illegible] say, That [illegible] pride [illegible] plans [illegible] Christ, our [illegible] enemies.

In contrast to the spirit of a selfish world [illegible] one another [illegible] every other [illegible] some where, in [illegible] way:

"For in companionship
That do converse and [illegible]
the time together
Whose souls do bear an equal yoke of love
There must be needs a [illegible]
proportion
Of lineaments of manners,
and of spirit."

Shakespeare.

Local Church Will Join Silver Jubilee Observance

The First Church of the Nazarene, which celebrated the twentieth anniversary of its founding on Oct. 20, will join 2,000 churches over the country in observing the silver jubilee anniversary of the founding of the denomination during November, Rev. J. E. Davidson, pastor, announced today.

The official beginning of the church was 25 years ago at Pilot Point, Texas, where the Pentecostal Churches of America and the Holiness Church of Christ became a part of the present organization. Since then, the church rolls have grown to contain more than 100,000 names, with about 3,500 ministers, and foreign missionary work extending around the world.

Progress attained in the quarter century covers a wide field, now operating 2,000 churches scattered throughout the United States and Canada. These churches, parsonages, as well as other property of the church, now have a value of thirteen and a half million dollars. Schools and colleges owned by the church account for one and a half million dollars. The revenue of the church totals three and a half million dollars annually.

Among the institutions maintained by the church are six colleges, two junior colleges and Bible schools. These points of learning are: Eastern Nazarene college, Wollaston, Mass.; Trevecca college, Nashville, Tenn.; Olivet college, Olivet, Ill.; Bethany-Peniel college, Bethany, Okla.; Northwest Nazarene college, Nampa, Idaho; Pasadena college, Pasadena, Calif.; Bresee college, Hutchinson, Kans., and Northern Bible college, Red Deer, Alberta, Canada, the latter two being Bible schools.

In addition, the church operates three hospitals—Bresee hospital, China; Raleigh Fitkin Memorial hospital, Africa; Nazarene sanitarium, Nampa, Idaho, as well as four Cottages at Kansas City and Pilot Point, Texas.

From the church publishing house in Kansas City 20 periodicals are issued with an annual circulation of eight million copies. These consist of eight weeklies, which includes the Herald of Holiness, the official church paper; five monthlies and seven quarterlies. The publishing house is valued at more than one-quarter million dollars and its sales amount to another quarter million annually.

The church has, since its founding, been particularly interested in young people's activities. In 1908, there were 523 members in various young men's and young women's societies. Then in 1913, the Nazarene Young People's society was organized with 12,763 members, and it became recognized as a department of the general church. Since then the membership has grown to about 45,000. Spiritual objectives are outlined and all forms of worldliness are taboo. Rev. D. Shelby Corlett, Kansas City, is general secretary.

Another hymn, "Give of Your Best to the Master," and an anthem by the choir, will be followed by the sermon. The closing hymn will be "Who Is On the Lord's Side?"

When asked recently how they came to write "The Aftermath," one of the men said: "It is like this: The fight of civilization against the depression and the organized liquor interests is war. It's too late for beautiful and cultured language—that should have been used before citizens found themselves in the fix we are in. War calls for bludgeon tactics, 42 centimeter guns, poison gas, airplanes and submarines. Thus we use modern war tools because we find it is the only method of arousing the sleeping civilizing instincts of the average citizen."

The Stars Say

For Sunday, Nov. 5

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE holds excellent auguries for progressive and profitable as well as pleasant conditions for spiritual, mystical and ecclesiastical affairs, with much of moment in these connections, but at the same time there is a hazard through precipitancy, impetuosity, contention and strife, unless a strict curb be kept on tongue, temper and turbulent impulse. Jealousies also menace.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of many opportunities through large interests or corporations, with fine fruition of lofty ambitions, but this may arouse jealousy and provoke strife, dispute and wrangling. A sharp reign should be kept on the impulses as well as on speech and turbulent acts.

A child born on this day may be gifted, progressive, enterprising and ambitious but may be disposed to quarrel, also too aggressive and pugnacious for its own good, unless disciplined in youth.

Notable nativity: Ida Tarbell, writer.

For Monday, Nov. 6

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL forecast is for possible change, with probably travel, new environment or fresh interests, although these may not be of major importance and may have some element of frustration, postponement or obstruction. It might possibly be in consideration of illness, sorrow or anxiety in domestic or social circles or with other intimate ties. Safeguard the home interests.

Those whose birthday it is may find an opportunity for beneficial change during the year with new environs and affiliations. But this propitious prospect seems to be complicated, retarded or frustrated by anxious domestic, social or affectional ties. Or one's own physical condition may prove the handicap.

A child born on this day should be versatile, progressive in ideas and original and independent in thought and action. Its highest success may be frustrated by an overweening tendency to pleasure or home interests.

Notable nativity: Ignace Jan Paderewski, composer.

We have some exceptional bargains in upright and grand pianos. Must be closed out this month.

Daily Guide to Health

World Still Combatting Malaria.

Few persons are aware of the [illegible] rendered the world by the health organization of the League of Nations. This institution [illegible] a world wide effort to [illegible] disease. It publishes advice [illegible] necessary for the [illegible] of a serum.

An interesting report of this [illegible] before me as I write, it describes recent advances made in the study of malaria.

No one can deny that at one time malaria was a menace to people in [illegible] the world. The disease [illegible] known for many centuries. It was first described by Hippocrates, the father of medicine, in the fifth century B. C.

It was not until 1641 that any cure could be offered to sufferers from this disease. At that time it was discovered that when an extract made from the cinchona bar, was given the victim of malaria great relief was obtained. More than two hundred years passed before it became known that the beneficial effect of the extract was due to the quinine found in the cinchona plant.

Later there followed a series of rapid and important discoveries concerning malarial fever. In 1880 a French army surgeon named Laveran discovered that malaria was caused by a parasite. He called it the "malaria plasmodium."

A few years later Sir Ronald Ross discovered that the disease could be transmitted by the bite of a certain variety of mosquito. The mosquito transmitted the disease only after biting a sufferer from malaria. The parasite developed in the mosquito and could be passed on to its next victim.

During the past three decades malarial fever has been controlled by the partial eradication of the mosquito, by the screening of homes in infected areas, and by proper hygienic measures and the isolation of malarial patients. It is true that the disease is not as common as in former years but malaria still continues to be a health problem which concerns the whole world.

Though quinine is extremely beneficial in malaria, medical science has not as yet discovered a drug that will kill the parasite. When this is accomplished the fever will be prevented and the disease will be more completely controlled.

As I have implied, the spread of malaria is checked by destroying mosquitoes in all malaria infested sections of the world. Complete draining, oiling and sprinkling of mosquito-breeding places are essential. With support of the existing work now conducted by private organizations as the health organization of the League of Nations, and our own health organizations [illegible] will be complete eradication of this old and devastating disease of mankind.

Parable of the Rich Young Ruler

Matt. 19 16-26

16 And behold one come and said unto Him, Good Master what good thing shall I do that I may have eternal life?

17 And He said unto him Why callest thou Me good? there is none good but one that is God but if thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments

18 He saith unto him Which? Jesus said Thou shalt do no murder Thou shalt not commit adultery Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not bear false witness,

19 Honour thy father and thy mother and Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself

20 The young man saith unto Him, All these things have I kept from my youth up what lack I yet?

21 Jesus said unto him If thou will be perfect go and sell that thou hast and give to the poor and thou shalt have treasure in heaven and come and follow Me

22 But when the young man heard that saying he went away sorrowful for he had great possessions

23 Then said Jesus unto His disciples, Verily I say unto you That a rich man shall hardly enter into the kingdom of heaven

24 And again I say unto you It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God.

25 When His disciples heard it they were exceedingly amazed saying Who then can be saved?

26 But Jesus beheld them and said unto them With men this is impossible but with God all things are possible

Also Mark 10 17 31 and Luke 18 18-30.

IN almost the same words the story of the rich young ruler is told in Matthew, Mark and Luke

The Old Testament frequently speaks of inheriting the land (Ps 37 9,11) so the action of the rich young ruler coming to Jesus indicates an earnestness and enthusiasm that helps to understand why Jesus loved this man and wanted to help him.

In saying God is the One Good Master, Jesus does not deny His fellowship with God but wants to divert the young man's thoughts from external acts only. Jesus knew he was dissatisfied with keeping the countless little rules of the church, trying to satisfy his soul. This man who obeyed the commandments (Ex 20:13-16) from his early youth can only gain true fellowship with God by giving up his wealth.

Christ had deep sympathetic love for this man, realizing how much of a hindrance his wealth would always be toward keeping him from the eternal life.

Jesus' parable of the camel and the eye of a needle is another instance of a forceful and impressive exaggeration, which He often used to impress His hearers. Godliness is more profitable than selfishness, even for this life.

The Long Pull.

There are some situations that Americans face hardship most courageously when it is at a safe distance. They set their jaws and speak courageously of the long pull that will be necessary to achieve their goal, but when the veins begin to stand out and the going gets tough they promptly forget their noble talk about perseverance, patience, fortitude and the other first-class virtues.

Last spring the country lined up behind a new President, who had been elected because patience with Herbert Hoover's recovery methods had been exhausted. Mr. Roosevelt was, personally, a splendid symbol of the kind of courage which the situation needed to keep the people from losing confidence entirely in their leadership. He went to work in a way that bolstered confidence immediately. His countrymen supported him enthusiastically.

They were too intelligent to believe everything could be straightened out in a few months. Figuratively, they were ready to face the hardships of a long pull. They had a new leader and he seemed to have the right idea. The result was one of the greatest demonstrations of cooperation ever staged in the United States. No one could remember when so many Americans had been willing to work together. It looked for a time as though the impetus of the first enthusiastic movement would overcome the depression by the end of the summer.

Of course, it didn't. Things slowed down, and enthusiasm slowed down simultaneously. Weeks before six months of President Roosevelt's term had passed, frank observers noted a wide tendency to lose faith in the recovery program. People were tired of pulling, although the actual pulling had not really started. It seemed not unreasonable to say that they were tired of everything. The fight was gone out of them.

Being in a state of despair, it was natural for them to contribute to despair by showing plainly their willingness to give up the job of national recovery as a bad one. They have had an influence on public thinking, an influence which has helped to produce a common attitude of unreasonable impatience expressing itself in exorbitant demands.

President Roosevelt cannot produce better times by magic, but that is exactly what certain groups are demanding that he do. The spokesmen of these groups, in most cases, say plainly to the country when they voice their demands: "We speak for people who demand immediate recovery—people who are unwilling to wait any longer. Either we will be satisfied now or we will see to it that no one is going to be satisfied. We will wreck the whole program."

Anti-Lynching Laws.

Maryland's recent lynching is having unexpected repercussions in political circles. Even Governor Ritchie, who has seemed sometimes to have proprietary rights on the governorship, has been shaken by the blast of indignation that has mussed things up generally.

A result of national interest is expected. Circumstances make it imperative that Maryland devise some kind of anti-lynching law. Governor Ritchie has announced that the special session of the legislature called for this month will be asked to consider enactment of a statute.

Serious consideration is being given a law, already in effect in some states, which enables the state to levy a fine against a county or municipality in which a lynching occurs. It is, perhaps, the most ingenious method of preventing lynching that has been attempted.

There are numerous other methods, of course, which have been tried here and there over the country. When it is recalled that there were eight lynchings in 1932 and 175 in 1889, the evidence seems to indicate material progress in suppression of the outrage by law.

It is significant, however, that punishment seldom is administered under existing laws when local public opinion supports the lynchers. In its desperation to remove the stain of its most recent lynching, Maryland should take this fact into account. The best method of stamping out lynching is to raise the level of intelligence high enough to remove the attraction of mob rule.

Up Against It.

A [illegible] Ohio re[illegible] a [illegible] for many [illegible] months [illegible] A [illegible] of y a few [illegible] few are [illegible] al tax [illegible] Some [illegible] hand to mouth [illegible] fighting the wolf. It will be another thing to see schoolhouses closed and children on the street.

If one were to search in advance for a silver lining, he would have to confine himself to the probable effect on the public conception of the value of the service which schools have been giving. It is one of the basic and serious inconsistencies of popular thinking that people resent paying for services which have been established to meet their demands. In Ohio, hundreds of thousands of taxpayers who have made school systems the scapegoats of their impatience with heavy taxation will have an opportunity to review the wisdom of their attitude when the systems no longer are able to operate.

Self-Regulation.

Further proof of the unsoundness of claims that the United States has fallen under a dictatorship is offered in the plan for industrial self-regulation within the national recovery act. The proposal, instead of being attacked by administrative officials, is welcomed by them. A national council of industrial leaders to handle the dirty work of curbing rugged individualism when it becomes too rugged looks like a good thing to them, apparently.

The ultimate satisfaction that business would get out of the kind of a setup is problematic. By no means is it without potential shortcomings, from the business standpoint. Chiefly, it might make it impossible for business leadership to pass the buck to politicians when things went wrong. It is probably for that reason that General Johnson seemed not unwilling to consider the idea when it was proposed to him. Although not a politician, in the true sense of the word, he is experiencing most of the woes that go with being a politician.

There has been no buffer between him and the individuals with whom he has been dealing. To a large extent, he has personified to the country the power of the federal government over private enterprise. His character has not helped to minimize resentment with what was interpreted many times as harmful interference. Vigor was called for and vigor was given, but many times without appreciation.

It would be different if an industrial council were to be placed between him and the people affected most directly by his activities. If the council were to translate flawlessly the terms of the new deal, it would be more effective than any individual or public group could be, because it would be performing the function of self-regulation. Gone would be the resentment with dictatorship, unless the council were to be subservient to administrative officials and there is nothing in the past performance of the type of men which would constitute such a group to warrant the belief that it would be subservient.

Contribution.

Sadao Araki's assurance that Japan's adequate national defense will not be turned against Russia contains a phrase of gem-like value for other war ministers. "In view of the fact that every country in the world is making military preparations," he explains, "it is natural that, from a military and technical point of view, the army of the U. S. S. R. should be the hypothetical objective of Japanese preparations and the navy of the United States the hypothetical objective of our navy."

It couldn't be explained better for those troublesome people who want to know the name of the enemy who causes so much money to be spent in preparations. Is it possible that Americans might be permitted to know that ability to defeat Japan on the water and Russia on land are the hypothetical objectives of their costly national defense? Or would that be putting it too frankly for a peaceful people?

GENERAL ST. CLAIR'S GRAVE.

Though it is some 30 years since Governor George K. Nash started a movement for the erection of a monument to General Arthur St. Clair, the grave of St. Clair in Western Pennsylvania still stands marked only with a modest head stone that was placed there by his Masonic brethren. It was at the celebration of the centennial of the establishment of the state, held at Chillicothe in 1903, that Governor Nash urged that a suitable monument be erected to the territorial governor. His plan was to have the proposed monument placed at the grave of St. Clair near Ligonier, Pa., but Albert Douglas of Chillicothe, who at once offered a resolution embodying the ideas of Governor Nash, modified the proposition so that, with the governor's approval, so that the resolution called for placing the monument on the State House grounds at Columbus. Governor Nash asked the legislature to authorize erection of the monument but nothing ever came of it.

New York Day By Day

NEW YORK, N. Y., 4—Shortly after midnight I left [illegible] for the last trip of a leisurely walk home. Hesitating at the curb near our Delmonico [illegible] a rather weary voice above me called out: "Very exclusive!" A glance up revealed a hansom.

Once upon a time in New York streets, there stood for any who had an ancient nag gloomily [illegible]. The grizzled driver, [illegible] a drooping sparrow on his high [illegible] perch, [illegible] "Hansom, sir! Very exclusive!" The last hansom ride was 20 years ago.

Joe Hawthorne and Quentin Vassar were [illegible] at the [illegible], as I remember. It had come on to rain and my wife and I plunged [illegible] as [illegible] we could ill afford to [illegible] to Mrs. MacFadden's boarding [illegible] West 72d street. For old glories [illegible] I would try to recapture it.

[illegible] stepped off to a foot rest and into a [illegible] now become a strange vehicle. [illegible] feeling [illegible] new weight, was [illegible] startled. His ears went up. The [illegible] "Tsk, tsk" and we moved off [illegible] the first sinking glide of a [illegible]

[illegible] embarrassment I had forgotten to [illegible] to ask directions. A tiny lid [illegible] [illegible] of above. "Where to, Madam?" [illegible] wayfarer, I had all [illegible] like Noel Coward's hiccup, because of importance—a Major! "Up [illegible] to the park and down Broadway," I called.

[illegible] [illegible] corsets about the waist-[illegible] [illegible] in turn of high wheels [illegible] sparked clippity-clop. Likely [illegible] [illegible] generation resents the [illegible] [illegible] taxis and some-[illegible] drivers. Here indeed a luxurious [illegible] wheels. Something of [illegible] [illegible] in the way the whip-[illegible] [illegible] carelessly over the horse's [illegible] [illegible] same sat some day, I [illegible] [illegible] a blood in plaid trousers [illegible] [illegible] the top of a cane.

[illegible] [illegible] encouraged by the nibble of [illegible] [illegible] made one almost hear a [illegible] [illegible] and see a raised and protesting [illegible] [illegible] self-fingered gloves. "Fie, [illegible] [illegible] embrace so helpless a [illegible] [illegible] mercy, sire!" And the [illegible] [illegible] replied: "Then Guinevere, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] to your father [illegible] [illegible] Ghost."

We [illegible] [illegible] echoey, clip-clop, turning [illegible] [illegible] Once noted for the sedate [illegible] [illegible] and Dakota now a dazzling array [illegible] [illegible] stepping spires, ultra modern [illegible] [illegible] Maid Morehouse and Billy Gaxton [illegible] [illegible] in front of the Essex. [illegible] Circle. How many hundred [illegible] [illegible] trolled up to Reisenweber's and Farrell's [illegible] other day! Robust nights and [illegible] with silk hats drooping over a hansom's [illegible] doors. A few steps north of the [illegible] Bastanobi's, haunt of Diamond Jim, the Castles, Mae Murray and other [illegible] of the era. But tonight only scattered [illegible] at the curb breadline unfortunates [illegible] a last "drag" at cigarets before seeking warmth of abandoned hallways.

Broadway beamed in rosy light. A roysterer stepping into his modern taxi hesitates to jeer at my serenely oblivious charioteer. Perhaps the driver, like his fare, was dreaming, too, of forgotten days. Instead of Rector's and the whine of Ted Lewis' clarinet now the smart nice sandwich joints where a newer Broadway figuratively cuts throats instead of capers.

Washington And Wall Street

By GEORGE DURNO.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3—Inside word indicates the farmers are going to let out one loud yip when they get their spring mail order catalogs.

Because of their enormously bulk and complexity the mail order houses are busy even now in making up the big books.

It's hinted that considerable mark-ups in prices will stare the farmer in the eye.

The shop-by-mail emporiums are in a touch spot.

They don't know just where the New Deal is leading. They're all at sea over what is going to happen to currency value. They're afraid price-fixing is in the offing.

But inasmuch as they sell everything from a pin to a bungalow they can't wait to find out. The spring catalog has to be compiled in the fall.

Only by adding materially to prevailing prices do the houses think they can play safe.

If the catalogs go out with the prices now being indexed the man on the farm probably will be hotter than ever about the trade balance against him.

It's a tough problem. The mail order men are like a newspaper reporter ordered to write a story today stating what happened next spring.

Shelters.

A movement is afoot to have the tariff commission placed under the wing of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce.

Secretary of Commerce Roper is one in particular who would like to see it there. Secretary of State Hull and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace are said to be agreeable. The transfer of the function — would be in line with a desire to combine under a single roof the agencies that must make President Roosevelt in his forthcoming protective tariff adjustments under NRA.

There is some question whether the President has the authority to make such a transfer, since the tariff commission is an independent agency normally reporting to congress. Administration lawyers say he has—under the recovery act.

They cite the [illegible] consolidation of the [illegible].

In any event Mr. [illegible] is preparing to carry out the recovery act's pledge that [illegible] manufacturers and [illegible] under the blue eagle will be protected from foreign competition. [illegible] signs point to a further [illegible] tion of the commission.

William E. Humphrey, [illegible] Republican member [illegible] first to go, according to [illegible] to the administration.

It is being predicted [illegible] that Robert L. O'Brien, Massachusetts Republican, and Elmer Brossard of Utah [illegible] former Senator Smoot, will [illegible] shortly.

Pumping.

The tentative decision to ask congress for an extra [illegible] to sink into public works has inflationists all hopeful.

They see a golden opportunity if such a request is made—to demand turning on the [illegible] presses.

Pap for public works with strings back—will be their cry.

In this they might be backed by the group demanding that henceforth public works money be pumped directly into pay rolls—that is by the government actually meeting the payroll of any [illegible] ject while the state [illegible] or private interest [illegible] the rest.

Those sponsoring this [illegible] say they don't care [illegible] what kind of jack the [illegible] paid with so long as it [illegible] the grocery store.

And so long as it starts flowing out of the paymaster's [illegible] more noticeable [illegible].

Debt.

The business of [illegible] swelling the [illegible] to an uncertain manner.

The public debt of $2[illegible],000 is nearly two and a quarter billion bigger than last year with very large sums still unspent and written on the red side of the ledger. It stood at about this figure when Andy Mellon took hold of the treasury back at the start of the Harding administration. With much opposition though in boom times he cut it to around sixteen billion.

But it didn't stay there long after the crash of 1929.

Barnacles.

Ship repair men have taken prominent places at the wailing wall over what they call gross injustice on the part of public works administration.

The barnacle-scraping industry signed an NRA code contemplating a 36-hour week with 45 cents an hour for common labor and 87 cents for skilled labor.

Then along came PWA and allotted $12,000,000 for emergency repair work for the coast guard, lighthouse service, etc. The rub was they stipulated a 30-hour week with common labor getting 55 cents an hour and skilled $1.25.

A protest was made first to an NRA official. The latter couldn't see why one man shouldn't be willing to work for 87 cents on a private job next door to a man getting $1.25 for tinkering with a government boat. Both would have jobs, he pointed out.

The complaint was carried to Administrator Ickes. His comeback was that the set-up would give idle plants a whack at some business.

The repair artists replied all the yards were idle for all practical purposes but nothing to change that condition has happened.

Notes.

NRA makes some strange bedfellows. Father Francis Haas, of the national labor board, has just finished mediating the labor difficulties experienced by the sporting paper Racing Form. The good ship Sequoia probably is tied up for the rest of the year. In addition to the approach of uncomfortable temperatures every time President Roosevelt has used his yacht in recent weeks he has come home with a bad cold.

By JAMES MCMULLIN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—New York wasn't as excited as you might think about the latest gold move.

It took no oracle to see within 48 hours that the domestic gold mirror trick was going to be a washout so far as raising prices was concerned. Stronger measures were obviously needed to get the balloon off the ground. Officially advertising the decline of the dollar just didn't work. Purchasing gold in the world market and selling dollars for the purpose was indicated as clearly as Fifth avenue at night.

The first actual purchases will be very small. Old man psychology will be given another chance. But nothing much will happen and the [illegible] will be increased. Then—if New York wiseacres are to be believed—Professor Warren's price [illegible] will be chucked in the ash [illegible] stronger medicine pres[illegible].

Next.

New York [illegible]tatives are convinced that Doc Greenbacks is just [illegible] the corner now—and not [illegible] the corner either. They [illegible] his methods can [illegible] the point [illegible] first time. They claim [illegible] the big sense for the government [illegible] a balance between [illegible] and [illegible] much [illegible] plunging prices to a [illegible] gross misery.

They concede that the [illegible] would be used carefully and some [illegible] safeguards that it must be kept under control. But there are [illegible] of Cassandras among the [illegible] who won't see anything but woe.

England

What will England do if the dollar keeps sliding down? As you know it is not a currency war. A working agreement to keep the dollar and pound in step is in the cards. There are inside whispers that the outlines of the plan have been approved on both sides of the Atlantic already.

This is not because England approves our plan. She is simply unwilling to take the field against us, even in an alliance with the gold bloc. New Yorkers with London contacts say the British believe we swing enough weight to carry our point in the world markets and that it would be wisdom on their part to be on the winning side.

France.

Insiders learn that France will try hard to remain technically on the gold standard and will probably use a gold embargo as a weapon. That way she could emulate Germany, which is still officially on gold although a lot of her business is transacted in depreciated blocked marks which cannot be exported. It is not impossible that France will sit in on a highly informal monetary conference with the United States and Great Britain.

Backers.

Local authorities with Washington contacts say that the more conservative financial advisers in Washington had a large finger in the latest pie.

They were caught napping when Professor Warren's RFC trick registered like a golf ball through a window pane. Once that was accomplished they changed their tune on the principle that we'd better make a thorough job of it while we were at it. The federal reserve and treasury crowds decided they might as well have some say in the matter—and got it.

It's an open secret that anti-inflationists regard the success of the gold purchase plan as their last hope.

The Federal Reserve bank of New York—almost an outcast a few months ago—will be in there doing its stuff. It had no less than three representatives (including Fred I. Kent with high financial connections) present at the conference which decided on the policy.

Support.

Some well placed New Yorkers are in favor of backing the President no matter what he proposes. "Nothing he tries can possibly be as bad as the congressional hash we'll get if he doesn't produce action before congress meets."

Exchange.

British and French importers are complaining bitterly about American "amateur" dumping. Several of our capitalists are wise to the fact that the most legal and quickest way to export capital is via merchandise. Consequently they buy goods in the export line over here, ship them abroad and then sell them without a profit in Europe. All they want is foreign exchange.

Bloc.

The gold operators have made rapid progress in forming a congressional bloc to be seen in action next January. They and the silverites have just made the charming discovery that their interests are similar and plans to join forces are afoot.

The combination won't count for much in the house but their senatorial champions will be legion and skilled in the political arts — including that of log-rolling.

All in all the boys are quite cheesy at the prospects and hope to keep probable taxes down to a painless level.

TODAY

Arthur Brisbane's News Review : : :

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—Today's money news: The dollar falls down again. It might be called a Humpty Dumpty dollar. New York's Chamber of Commerce wants to go back to the gold standard, and is dreadfully afraid of the big, black inflation. Your Uncle Sam, "buying gold quietly abroad through the R. F. C." put the price up yesterday to $33.57 an ounce.

What a bargain the United States could have had if, instead of going off the gold basis and then buying gold, with punched dollars, it had contracted for the gold it wanted for regular dollars and had then gone off the gold basis with the gold bars safe, away in Washington! That is what clever minds might have done, but it would hardly be worthy of a United States President.

Fast Flying

Jimmy Wedcell of Louisiana flew from Washington to New York yesterday in 50 minutes and will try to do it in 40 minutes. His average speed, 200 miles an hour, would cross the continent in less than 12 hours.

To realize what that means in the way of improvement, remember that our ancestors, holding presidential elections early in November, postponed the inauguration until the following March that members of the electoral college and the elected might have time to travel from their homes to Washington.

With flying established, inauguration day could easily be changed from March 4 to November 24.

Rays C Through You

Having photographed negative and positive electrons, particles of the atom charged, some with negative, some with positive electricity, Professor Millikan of California says both have the same mass. It was supposed that electrons positively charged had 2,000 times the mass of those negatively charged.

Professor Millikan says: "This, with the discovery of the positron by Dr. Carl D. Anderson, is the most fundamental and far-reaching advance of the century." You have to know a great many other things to know why.

While you are wondering, cosmic rays roaming through the universe, with an electronic energy of three billion volts, are "drilling holes straight through your body from head to heel." And that cosmic bombardment is good for you. "Fearfully and wonderfully made" is putting it mildly.

Valuable Indian Women

Laws of the Iroquois Indians, about 300 years old, have been discovered by the Smithsonian Institution, proving the intelligence of those primitive red men. Constant blood feuds caused so many killings that the tribe threatened to become extinct. Wampum fines were established for killings, and the fine for killing a man was 10 strings of wampum, whereas for killing a woman the fine was 20 strings of wampum. A woman, according to the wise Iroquois, was worth twice as much as a man.

There was nobody there to put the Iroquois "off the wampum basis," and the fines impoverished many families. But they discouraged murder.

Authorities in Jerusalem believe that the Arab uprising against Jewish immigration is over for the time. Arab crowds were discouraged by British planes flying low over their heads. And no Mohammed was at hand to drive them away.

Some men are doggedly honest to the last. In East Orange, N. J., John H. Berrett, automobile salesman, unemployed, discouraged, killed himself by turning on the gas. But first, he pinned $4 to a note, explaining that the money was to pay for the gas used that would be considered very useful in some high financial circles.

Of 1,000,000 human beings, 999,999 cling desperately to life. The one millionth seeks death just as desperately. Yesterday, at Somerset, Miss Ida Josephine Tracey, only 21 years old, walked on the railroad tracks when she saw a train approaching, pulled by two locomotives; sat down between the rails, and waited until the locomotive rolled over her and killed her. Who can imagine what went on in the mind of the girl as she sat waiting?

Reason for Worry

We worry much about ten billion dollars that Europe owes us and does not intend to pay and worry little about crime that costs the United States thirteen billion dollars every year. It is urged that alien criminals be deported. But there is no special reason for sending the thirteen-billion-dollar-a-year crime bill on the foreign-born. We have efficient home-grown criminals.

The recent era of "cheap" beer and expensive bootleg whisky has worked in favor of temperance. New York state's tax commissioner reports that since beer came in and whisky drinking diminished there has been a "sharp decrease in the application of automobile drivers' licenses because of drunkenness."

It had been predicted by the prohibitionists that legal beer would mean more drunken drivers.

Homemaker's Question Box

Question—What are the tips on the season's dresses?

Answer—The dress you buy now should be high at the neck, wide but not too wide at the shoulders, full in the bust, and fitted over the hips, in the opinion of clothing specialists at the Ohio State University. The dress may have some skirt interest especially at the hips or near the hemline.

Fabrics are all important—in fact, the distinction of the dress depends largely upon the quality and originality of the fabric from which it is made. Fabrics are soft and "drapy." Their surfaces are hairy, tweedy, homespunny, bouclé, nubby, diagonal, herringbone ribbed grainy, crepe-like and suede-like. There are many satins, taffetas, and much velvet and corduroy.

Colors are fascinating, too. There are dark shades like Oxford gray, taupes, mahogany, cinnamon, and the wines. Brilliant accents and contrasts often relieve the dark tones. This may be a blouse, a sash, or the accessories, such as hat, gloves and scarf. Plaids, checks, and stripes or a polkadot, especially in woolens, are excellent for sportswear.

CHAPTER FORTY-ONE
The Major Calls

AS JIM RANDAL entered the free library in Ledlington, a car stopped at Miss Patsy Arbuthnot's wicket gate and a small dapper man got out. He slammed the door of the car behind him, clicked open the gate, marched up the path to the front door, and delivered a smart rat-tat.

He wore an air of military impatience, and after the briefest of intervals his knock was repeated, and so loudly as to bring Patsy Ann out of the scullery without waiting to dry her hands. Her consternation was considerable at finding the chief constable on the doorstep at such an hour—the breakfast things not cleared away, her feet—Patsy was proud of her feet—in her oldest shoes; and her hands and arms dripping with the geranium dye in which she had just immersed an aged pink sports coat.

Her color rose. She put up a hand to her hair, left a gruesome stain on her temple, and said in an agitated voice,

"Oh, good morning, Major Anderson—I'm dyeing."

Hang it all, the girl looked as if she had been killing a pig.

With this in the back of his mind, he removed his hat and said, "Good morning."

"I'm afraid I'm an early visitor," he proceeded, "but I've come on a matter of business. Perhaps I might see Miss Leigh."

Patsy indicated a chair, apologized for the breakfast things, and ran upstairs in despair to inform Caroline.

"Major Anderson is downstairs, and my coat's only half done—and just look at me!"

Caroline was dusting her dressing-table. She straightened up with her back to Patsy.

"Major Anderson?"

"Yes—the chief constable — on business. What can he want? He asked for you. I must get some of this stuff off my hands. Do come down."

"All right," said Caroline without moving.

She put on a little rouge and went down.

Major Anderson was looking out of the window. He might have been admiring the dahlias. He turned as she came down the stair, said, "How do you do?" and pulled a chair away from the breakfast table for her.

"Miss Leigh," he said, "I've called at what, I hope, is not a very inconvenient hour to make some inquiries about—well, about Jim Randal."

Caroline said, "Yes?" Her voice sounded deep and mournful. It did not shake; that was one comfort.

"NOW, Miss Leigh," said Major Anderson — "perhaps you wouldn't mind telling me when you last heard from Jim Randal."

"It was the beginning of August," said Caroline.

"Can you give me the date?"

"Yes—the fourth."

"Would you mind telling me what he said?"

"Oh no. It was just a few lines. I was staying with Mrs. Oglivie at Craigellachie. Jim was coming there too. He wrote to say he would take a steamer up the coast."

"Did he say what steamer?"

"No."

"Did you hear again?"

"No, we didn't."

Major Anderson leaned forward. "Had you any reason to suppose that he was on the Alice Arden?" His small, sharp grey eyes fixed Caroline.

"We thought he must have been."

"Why?"

"He didn't come, and he didn't write."

"I see. You say he didn't write. You're sure of that? You're sure he hasn't communicated with you since the wreck of the Alice Arden?"

"Quite sure," said Caroline. She wondered whether this was a lie. What was "communicating?"

"Now, Miss Leigh—I believe you went to the Elston cottage hospital in response to a broadcast message stating that they had a man there who appeared to have lost his memory. It was believed that his name was Jim Riddell, or Randal. You went there?"

"Yes."

"You didn't see the man?"

"No—his wife had taken him away."

"Yes, his wife—and left no address."

"She said his name was Riddell," said Caroline. She hopes she did not say it too quickly.

"You were satisfied that it could not have been Jim Randal?"

"Jim isn't married—she said it was her husband."

"And you've heard nothing from your cousin since then?"

The telephone bell rang on the other side of the room. Caroline had never been so glad to hear anything in her life. She went over to the foot of the stair and lifted the receiver. As she did so, Patsy's door opened and Patsy's voice called to her.

"I expect that's Jenny, to know whether I'm coming to the treasure hunt this evening. If it is, tell her I can't."

"I'm so sorry," said Caroline over her shoulder to Major Anderson. Then she put the receiver to her ear, and heard Jim say,

"Caroline—"

It was the most paralyzing shock. Jim—telephoning to her—and the chief constable exactly three yards away, waiting for an answer to his question: "And you've heard nothing from your cousin since then?"

PATSY was coming down the stairs.

"I'm so sorry, Major Anderson, but I was simply drenched with dye. Do forgive me for being so long. Caroline won't be a moment. Jenny Ross has got a treasure hunt this evening and I said perhaps I'd go but I don't think I will. I don't care for them really, and after last night Wasn't it a frightful storm! I don't think I ever remember anything worse than that last crouch of thunder. Caroline was out, and I was dreadfully nervous."

"Yes, yes," said Major Anderson—"Miss Ross' treasure hunt. I hope it will be fine. My nephew Jack is going, I believe. I hope there will be a moon."

Caroline spoke into the telephone. "Yes?"

"Caroline, I've just rung up to say I've had to go off. You mustn't go there again. Good-bye, dear."

"Wait," said Caroline. "Wait." Her lips were so stiff that she could hardly get them to move. How was she to find words that would mean nothing to Patsy and Major Anderson and yet stop Jim from going away where she couldn't find him or get in touch with him?

She had to give him Susie Van Berg's message and to let him know the frightful danger he was in.

"I mustn't wait," said Jim. "Don't worry."

"Where are you ringing from?"

As she waited for Jim's answer, she heard Major Anders n say to Patsy,

"Then you believe that your cousin was drowned?"

Then Jim,

"Ledlington post office. I can't stop."

Caroline's head cleared suddenly. She bent down to the mouthpiece and spoke in quite a natural voice,

"Wait a moment—you don't forget you're coming to Jenny Ross' treasure hunt, do you? They won't begin while it's light, so we'd better meet about 9."

"What are you talking about? Caroline, you've got to keep out of this."

Caroline achieved a laugh.

"I can't stop either—I've got a visitor. I'll be at the end of Nosta's road—I can't remember its name—at 9 o'clock. Will that be all right?"

"Caroline, you're not to come! I can't be there."

"Very well. I'll be there at 9. Yes of course I'll come — I wouldn't miss it for anything."

She hung up the receiver and turned to face the room.

"That wasn't Jenny?" said Patsy.

"No," said Caroline.

Major Anderson rose to his feet. "If you have any news of your cousin—" He stopped, said "Hm!" and changed the construction of his sentence. "If your cousin should communicate with either of you, will you ask him to get in touch with me as soon as possible—in his own interests—" He checked himself for a second time.

It was more than probable that Jim Randal would never communicate with anyone again, since he had either been drowned or else had the very strongest motives for making himself scarce. A bad business, I'sed to be a damn nice youngster. Well, well.

He got into his car and drove away.

To Be Continued.

Sunday School Class Holds Tea at Isaly Home

THE home of Mrs. C. H. Isaly of Vernon Heights boulevard formed an attractive setting for the social tea at which members of the Wolcott Sunday school class of the First Presbyterian church entertained yesterday afternoon. About 150 guests were received between the hours of 2:30 and 5:30 o'clock.

Chrysanthemums in yellow and white centered the table from which the guests were served by Mrs. H. L. Gewelter, Mrs. J. L. Hoover, Miss Emma Thompson and Mrs. R. A. Garvin.

A delightful program, arranged by Mrs. Eugene H. Moore, was presented during the tea hour. Miss Miriam Walker entertained with a violin number and Mrs. Grant F. Musser Jr. was heard in a group of readings. Piano solos were presented by Mrs. V. E. Dombaugh and Miss Wanda McMahan, and Mrs. R. O. Bresler and Mrs. Eugene H. Moore were each heard in a vocal number.

Plans for the tea were in charge of a committee composed of Mrs. Isaly, Mrs. R. A. Garvin, Mrs. D. J. Shelton, Mrs. J. G. Cooper, Mrs. Emma Thompson and Mrs. Anna Waters.

Just Things
—BY EDNA S. DUTTON—

Votes

WOMEN voting for the first time in many moons, will mark their X's and scratch their ticket with the aplomb of the oldest voter on Tuesday next. And justly so, if you're asking us. But there will be those taking time out for a bit of reminiscing who can recall when they sat speechless and speechless as the male best minds discussed the issues of the day and the merits or demerits of the candidates on election day. If you went to the polls, which was almost a forward gesture, it was with a feeling akin to fear and trembling. Not that you weren't interested, for you were, but it just wasn't being done. And was there ever a feeling to match the humiliation of seeing your favorite candidate (in effigy) sailing down Salt Creek, the day after. Just as if the defeat wasn't enough.

Names

HOW many times have you changed your name? We don't mean the way Peggy Joyce changes hers but just the spelling of it, back in the days when you decided to be different by adding an h or changing the e's to y's or vice versa. And was there ever any embarrassment to compare with having someone start prying into second names and having to own up to a good old standby like Sarah or Phoebe, or perhaps Nancy, when you'd give you best doll to own up to Helen, Betty or in fact most any other but the one you owned. And now you wouldn't trade it for all the rest in the dictionary. But at that a girl has a better break than a boy. Imagine being named for a president or some other hero of the day. Can't you just hear, oh, yes, she was born when Dewey saved Cuba or some other landmark of the century of time.

Decorations

HALLOWE'EN is past and gone for this year at least but there is nothing wrong with using the decorations we heard one hostess tell about, the season through. A gourd filled with bittersweet was the colorful note she thought up for a party. And what, we ask you, would be more cheerful looking for early winter than just that. Gourds used to make good dippers to drink from, too, unless one who knows.

Given in Marriage

By ADELE GARRISON.

Katie Is Assigned To Stand Guard, with Jim, Over the Crated Lee Chow.

THE chagrin and indecision in my little maid's face at my father's suggestion would have affected any sensitive muscles in likely fashion if I'd not been for the serious side of the problem which confronted me.

But with Lee Chow gone safely out of the apartment, and placed under guard in Dicky's vacant room with Hugh being brought from his self-imposed post by Dicky's hospital bed in answer to Lee Chow's waiting call for him, also to see with the simplest, amateur shooting of Dicky envelopping me in a smothering blanket with its terror and mystery, I was in no mood to appreciate Katie's pride and new found importance.

Katie knew of course that there was no possible chance for her to prevent my father from the ultimatum he had given her, but it took her almost a minute to bring herself to the point where she could give up her cherished purpose of "drawing over" Jim.

"All right," she said at last, swallowing painfully. "I no say nuddings to hem 'bout nuddings, but I keep two, tree eyes on dat old Lee Chow, you bet your boots."

Katie Is Disappointed

"That is what I want you to do," my father said approvingly. "Come with me now to Mr. Graham's room. But first" he held up his hand as if he were a court official administering an oath—"word of honor, you're not going to 'draw over' Jim."

Katie gulped again, but put up her right hand in ludicrous imitation of his.

"Sure ting," she said. "Word of honor."

"All right," my father said, dropping his stern manner and smiling at her genially. "Come along."

She followed him out of the room eagerly as might a kitten that scents a saucer of cream at the end of its journey. Lillian went to the door with the evident intention of shutting it, but paused with her hand on the knob.

"He'll be back in a minute or two, I fancy. No use shutting it again."

But I noticed that she kept her position close to the door, a vantage point that gave her an oblique but effective view of the corridor, even while she was talking to me. The furtive espionage told me that she had not lost all her fear of the maddened Chinese, even though her husband himself had secured the knots of the rope binding him.

She relaxed, however, when my father came back, and came into the room. But I noticed with a renewed quivering of my nerves that he shut and locked the door before he did anything else. Patently he was taking no chances upon Lee Chow's getting to our door again.

Awaiting Hugh's Return

I was standing with my hands gripping a chair back, and when my father turned back from the door he crossed to me swiftly and put me forcibly but gently into a big chair. Lillian drew two chairs near mine and, sitting down in one, motioned my father to the other.

"Sit down, Chief," she said affectionately. "You'll be worn out with all this."

"On the contrary," he said brightly, "I haven't felt so fit in years. But I will sit down while I wait for Hugh. Literally, there is nothing else to do."

He looked at his watch, then spoke thoughtfully.

"Harry's been gone five minutes, say five minutes more to the hospital, five minutes to get Hugh away, 10 minutes back here. We've 20 minutes to wait. I fancy Lee Chow will be quiet for that length of time. He appears to be utterly exhausted. And no wonder, poor fellow."

I could hardly believe I had heard him aright. Was my father actually expressing pity for this man who had so nearly brought death into our household, and was still like a wild beast caged? I did not dare voice that question, but I put another.

"Father," I said hesitatingly, "you promised to tell me what this all meant. Couldn't you do it now, while we are waiting for Hugh?"

Original "Diamond Oil" Has Record of Valuable Service as Family Medicine

The Van Scoy Chemical Co is the producer of the orginal Diamond Oil the family doctor for nearly half a century

Diamond Oil can be used externally or taken internally The [illegible] of many of the country's leading football teams use Diamond Oil as a liniment in taking care of injuries to players

Internal Action

When Diamond Oil is used as a gargle or spray the medicinal properties of the oils come in direct contact with the affected area of the respiratory organs and produces an antiseptic action Disease germs are eliminated from the affected membrane and a healing process is started by the medicinal action of Diamond Oil upon diseased tissues In some cases the medicinal properties of this remedy penetrate the body tissue and is absorbed by the blood

Diamond Oil can be used full strength as a spray, gargle or in medicinal form Diamond Oil used full strength will produce quicker healing results than if it is necessary to dilute it with one or two parts of hot water

Diamond Oil can be diluted with water in order to give a solution which can be used agreeably by the patient It should be remembered that a strong solution as possible will give the best results

External Action

Diamond Oil produces a penetrating and stimulative action through the skin tissue It is also a counter irritant and very antiseptic This external effect increases the circulation and draws the blood away from the congested area. Diamond Oil should be thoroughly rubbed into the skin as it will not stain nor leave an odor

Below are listed some of the many uses for this fine product

Asthma This is periodic affection for which there is no definite cure Modern medical science is still however in many cases to determine the cause which may then be avoided However relief may be obtained during attacks in many cases by spraying or gargling the throat with Diamond Oil The exterior of the throat and chest should be well rubbed with Diamond Oil several times daily and nightly until the attack is subsided

Catarrh—The disease has many forms requiring different methods of treatment by a specialist Relief can be had in the majority of cases by gargling the throat and nasal passages with Diamond Oil If the patient is unable to use Diamond Oil full strength dilute it with water using three parts of water to one part of Diamond Oil

Colds—A cold is a symptom of many diseases The germs of most diseases are generally found in the throat or nose Cold in the head and sore throat is often the first symptom to be noted in the cases of meningitis infantile paralysis and pneumonia Throat and nasal passages should be sprayed with Diamond Oil full strength If the patient is unable to stand a full strength solution dilute Diamond Oil with warm water using three parts of water to one of Diamond Oil The throat chest and back should be thoroughly rubbed with Diamond Oil and in severe cases hot applications can also be placed on the [illegible] Diamond Oil [illegible] and underlying tissues

Bronchitis—If a cold has been neglected and an [illegible] bronchitis develop take a purgative followed by a [illegible] Rub the throat with Diamond Oil and also spray or gargle the throat with a strong solution of Diamond Oil as the patient can stand In severe cold it is well to repeat this treatment every four hours

Coughs [illegible] few hours gargle or spray throat with Diamond Oil Diamond Oil is especially recommended for [illegible] colds because it can be applied externally as well as internally and will not disturb the digestion Growing children need [illegible] and exercise To keep them free from colds and contagious diseases the best plan is to keep Diamond Oil on hand and use it at the first sign of a cold or sore throat

Flu or Influenza Scientists have found that during the first 12 hours of infection the germs of flu and most of the other contagious diseases are confined almost entirely to the throat and nose Medicinal tests have proven that the use of Diamond Oil is often sufficient to check germ growth and prevent its spread to lungs and blood During an epidemic or after exposure the throat and nasal passages should be thoroughly sprayed with Diamond Oil in order to keep the membranes free from these disease germs

Colic—Place ten to twenty drops of Diamond Oil on a teaspoon full of sugar and take every half hour until relieved A teaspoonful of Diamond Oil can be taken in half a glass of hot water which will give almost immediate relief

Sore Throat—Over fifty contagious diseases have their origin in the human throat If the throat membranes are kept in a healthy condition there is less danger of disease At the first sign of sore throat spray the throat with Diamond Oil Results can also be obtained by swabbing the throat with this preparation on their ward and precinct leaders to "get out the vote."

Thousands of Marion city and county residents will go to the polls Tuesday to vote on one national issue, four state issues, city, county and local district boards of education, city, village and township officials.

One of the keenest questions to be decided Tuesday is whether Ohio will fall in line with the unbroken list of 35 states which have ratified the Twenty-first amendment to the national constitution, repealing the Eighteenth amendment. Precinct election boards have been instructed to count votes on the national issue first, and to telephone the results to the county board of elections, which will in turn forward them to the secretary of state. Marion county and surrounding district, regarded in past years as decidedly dry, will be watched with interest as these returns come in.

The secretary of state has instructed election officials to count votes on the four state issues next. These are the old age pension, repeal of Ohio's prohibition laws, reduction of the real estate tax limitation to 10 mills and the county home rule amendment to make way for modernization of county government.

As political organizations prepared to wind up their campaign activities, party leaders reviewed a busy but quiet two-month period of work. Throughout the campaign, marked in both parties by thorough organization which placed workers in each precinct to urge support of candidates, there has been a notable absence of oratory and of "mud throwing." With the exception of a few city-wide rallies and meetings most of the work has been done in ward and precinct gatherings or by word of mouth. Both parties have maintained headquarters throughout the campaign. Candidates have spent much time in ward and precinct meetings getting acquainted with workers and giving brief outlines of the principal platforms in these meetings.

fected in all departments of the city government. All essential functions have been kept in operation.

With reference to the question of the city ownership of public utilities the Republican administration believes that this should not be made a political issue. While the present administration initiated the move in this direction and will continue its cooperation with the utilities committee, it should be remembered that men of all parties belong to this committee and are working with the administration on this committee as well as many members of the opposing political party.

We believe that the present Republican ticket is an admirable combination of experience and new blood and we commend it to the favorable consideration of the voters of the city of Marion.

BOLIN STATEMENT

Several positions can be combined without lowering their efficiency.

Both I am against all wage cuts until all efforts to effect economy by other means have been exhausted. Wage cutting both in private and public business is a false and senseless idea of economy. Wage cutting may become unavoidable in government as a result of what private industry has done. Intelligent government officials will never resort to wage reductions until they have exhausted every other means of reducing expenses, and that other means of reducing expenses in Marion has not been exhausted by any means.

Sixth, I am against the exploitation of government by private groups and individuals for private gain and preferment. I have made no promise, and shall make none to any individual or group of individuals. The only promise I have given or will give is contained in this platform.

AMERICAN DANCER MURDERED IN EAST

By The Associated Press

JERUSALEM Nov 4— Found near the Garden of Gethsemane, the bodies of a young American woman and an Indian moslem presented authorities with a baffling mystery today.

The woman described as Joan Winters, a dancer apparently died from head injuries.

The olive grove in which the tragedy was revealed, is located at the foot of the Mount of Olives.

Romance behind the tragedy was indicated in an unmailed letter found in her effects which revealed she had formed an attachment for an Indian with whom she was walking when Arabs fired and killed them both.

The American consulate has taken charge of the case.

At Brooklyn, New York, Mrs. Bert Godfrey said she believed the young woman was her daughter, Carol Godfrey 25, who had appeared in a few stage productions as Joan Winters.

GOLD POLICY TREND IS EXPECTED SOON

Will Determine Whether Depreciation War Will Develop.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON Nov 4—Whether the new monetary policy of the United States will result in a currency depreciation war with other countries may be determined in the next few days.

With the British pound rising yesterday to $4.88, within a cent of its dollar value when both units were on a gold basis, some economists believe attainment of the old parity would be a logical point for decision of whether to seek approximate stabilization or further downward depreciation.

Although the administration emphasizes that it has no desire for a depreciation race, some officials concede such competitive devices a... tion still a possibility.

No clear cut statement has come from France or England to indicate their acquiescence in the administration's stated belief that ... buying of foreign gold would be pursued without detriment to them.

Currency depreciation gives the depreciating country a trade advantage as long as foreign prices rise more rapidly than domestic prices and costs.

The price paid by the mint for newly mined domestic gold was increased 10 cents today to $35.17 an ounce, 50 cents above world quotations.

consin—said they were unanimous in favoring the program.

"Compulsion is necessary to make farm relief work," said Olson.

"The administration's present program has the points for there is no assurance of production control through voluntary efforts. In my state they will raise more wheat than last year. Though a large percentage of the farmers signed up under the wheat program. Those who didn't sign will increase their output. The program gets at these."

Objections of farm officials centered around three points: administrators held the program would be too costly and unacceptable to a majority of farmers long used to running their own affairs.

Reno Prepares To Push Farm Strike

By The Associated Press

DES MOINES Ia., Nov. 4 Milo Reno, leader of the National Farmers Holiday association farm strike today wired the 21 state leaders of his organization to be prepared to "throw the strike into full gear" should President Roosevelt reject the holiday demands for cost of production prices on farm products. The demands were presented by five midwestern governors today.

"If the press correctly stated the situation at Washington Reno said, "the governors have been flatly turned down by Secretary Wallace. This comes as no surprise to me. Secretary Wallace has been opposed to the farmers union and the holiday program and obstructed it in every way possible.

"The problem is now up to the President of the United States and if he should support Secretary Wallace and refuse to consider our just demands and to ignore the pledges he made to the farmers in his pre-election campaign, the battle is on.

Citizens of Marion

Mr. C. A. Bolin, candidate for Mayor, in his platform advocates a "practical building code to the end that purchasers of homes be not exploited by defective materials and faulty workmanship." This, of course, is another socialistic measure. It would mean one or more new political jobs, "inspectors" to meddle in our building industry, with increased political costs. It would mean that the working classes would be denied more and more the right to build and own their own homes, since the operation of "building codes" has had exactly this effect wherever they have operated. These measures always tend to set up higher and higher standards of construction, which the poorer classes become less and less able to meet. Almost surrounding our city there are small homes, call them shacks, if you wish, owned by some of our very poorest people, who would not be owning these homes today if we had had an effective building code. Instead they would be living in inspected "code" homes, paying some landlord rent. Possibly these poor people would rather live in "shacks" that they can call their own, than be compelled to live in socialistic houses and pay rent.

Here is a typical example of how the poor are in nearly all cases "HELPED" by politics and socialism. Should the city council attempt to pass this "code" I shall personally fight it, with a referendum, if necessary.

LET FACTS BE YOUR GUIDE

But get more than half the facts before you make a decision.

The city auditor advises us that he either LOST OR MISLAID ONE OF HIS BOOKS, so we can't compare city expenditures for 1930 and 1932, but the facts are that unpaid bills more than make up the difference—

Bonds Issued 1930-1931	Bonds Issued 1932-1933
$151,556.70	$152,479.88

Republican Phillians Administration in 1932-1933 issued $921.18 more in city bonds than the preceding Democratic Administration.

Bonds Retired 1930-1931	Bonds Retired 1932-1933
$299,215.96	$231,183.58

The Republican Phillians Administration owes in current floating debts:
To The Marion Water Company	$ 43,566.98
To The C., D. & M. Electric Co.	37,331.15
To Unemployment Relief, 1932	42,000.00
To The Harding Publishing Co.	1,529.95
	$124,427.98
Total unpaid bills

Where will the Phillians Republican Administration get the money to pay these bills? As promised in Marion Star adv., Oct. 28.

Everyone knows that Mayor Phillians issued NO BONDS FOR RUNNING EXPENSES — AS IT WOULD BE CONTRARY TO LAW. No mayor has ever issued bonds for running expenses — and never will.

Study this record carefully and you will vote for the entire Democratic ticket electing Clarence Bolin and his supporters.

GALION AND HARDING GRID MACHINES MEET

Both Teams Fighting To Escape from N. C. O. League Cellar.

With both teams fighting to escape the cellar position of the North Central Ohio league, Harding and Galion clashed today on Heise park field in Galion. Neither team was rated much of a pre-game favorite and a stiff battle loomed. Both have lost two N. C. O. league games.

Harding entered the game without the services of one regular, "Paddy" Weller, first string center. Weller, suffering from an injury received in the Mansfield game, was not expected to see any action at all. All the other members of the squad were ready to go although several are nursing minor injuries. Galion reported none of its boys on the hospital list, giving both teams practically their entire strength for the game.

While Harding and Galion are settling their argument, Ashland and Shelby are meeting at Ashland in another N. C. O. game. Mansfield, the fifth N. C. O. team, plays Cleveland East today at Mansfield. The Cleveland team offers a serious threat to Mansfield's long winning streak. Neither has lost a game this year.

CAREY TAKES SIXTH STRAIGHT GAME, 33-0

Special to The Star

CAREY, Nov. 4—Carey High school clung to its unblemished football record yesterday on its home field by romping over Northwalk St. Paul 33-0 for the sixth consecutive victory. It was also the third victory in the League of Six Nations.

Myers and Messmer, Carey backfield stars, led the attack for the winners, accounting for all five touchdowns. Myers lugged the ball across three times and Messmer tallied twice. Mullholland place-kicked two extra points and Kitzler took a pass from third one to complete the scoring.

Myers turned in the longest run of the game when he took the third period kick-off and raced 93 yards for a touchdown.

The Maroon and White [illegible] Richwood 26-6, 19-0 [illegible] scoring in a second [illegible] offensive which swept the [illegible] off their feet. Deb Greenwood, performing at the fullback post, single-handed ran the Richwood defense dizzy scoring four touchdowns, kicked and tossing a forward pass to Parish for a fifth score.

Besides doing a major share of the ball carrying Greenwood did almost all of the passing and all of the kicking for his team. Three of the touchdowns came in the first half all of them on long dashes. He scored the first points of the game when he raced almost the length of the field on the first play of the game for a touchdown. Twice in the second period he faded back intending to pass but decided to run when he could locate no uncovered receivers. Each time he scored a touchdown. Parish and Gillespie accounted for the other two LaRue touchdowns and Gillespie added both the extra points.

Richwood scored its only points early in the opening period on a long pass, which came as a desperation play on a fourth down. After that Richwood threatened only once. In the second quarter the Union countians battered their way to within 20 yards of LaRue's goal but LaRue took the ball on downs and marched back to mid-field from where Greenwood reeled off two of his long dashes for a touchdown.

FOOTBALL DITCHED FOR RODEO

Wyoming School Finds Bulldogging Offers Fewer Injury Hazards

By The Associated Press

COLORADO SPRINGS — Football has been displaced by rodeo sport at the Cheyenne public school because "riding bucking horses and bulldogging yearling steers is dangerous" and school officials want something different.

"Of course the boys may get [illegible] a bit," admits Dr. Lloyd Shaw, superintendent of the school and originator of the idea, but there won't be any over-worked hearts.

Training For Future

"Every college and high school in the country has a football team. We want something out of the ordinary, something closer to nature and that will be some use to the youngsters when they grow up."

Dr. Shaw conceded it "took pluck" to ride a pitching horse, but contended that "contrary to popular belief, rodeo sports may be enjoyed without cruelty to animals."

"We've made too much of artificial sports," the superintendent added. "The boy is forgotten when he goes in for football."

"Things are done differently at Cheyenne school, which has an enrollment of 400, from kindergarten through high school. All pupils try out, even if they have to use [illegible] slaves. Everybody hikes.

Study Wild Life

"The school has a camp on the top of Pikes Peak where weekend gatherings are held to study nature and the stars. Special exhibitions sometime are called [illegible] sometime are called [illegible] of beauties of the out-[illegible]

At some other school this young student at Cheyenne public school, Colorado Springs, Colo., might have made a corking good quarterback. But chances are he'll learn at first hand more about the bumps awaiting him in future life right where he is. He's team captain, by the way.

Dizzy Packs 'Em in at St. Louis Cooking School

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 4—Dizzy Dean, who boasts of his ability to bring the customers to the ball parks, played to a capacity crowd in his debut as a culinary artisan.

With Dizzy the pupil, 9,500 persons jammed into the Washington university field house last night for the final session of a cooking school conducted by a newspaper. Hundreds of others couldn't get in.

As the teacher gave the instructions, Dizzy went to work, "slowly and precisely," as one woman described it.

A former pupil, Larry McDaniel, attorney, presented Dizzy with an elaborate bouquet of cabbage, onions, rubber balls and roses, all tied to a baseball bat. No vegetables were presented from long range, however.

The league leaders have yet to drop a game. The Precolators dropped out of a tie for first place into undisputed possession of the runner-up post when they lost the final game of three starts last night to the Sweepers, a second division combine.

GOVERNORS TO SEE OHIO, INDIANA TILT

Sideline Experts Pick Buckeyes To Win But Hoosiers Promise Fight.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 4—Backed by the governors [illegible] Ohio and Indiana the [illegible] of Ohio State university [illegible] today to find [illegible] is an underdog like [illegible] can be.

Although [illegible] experts gave the [illegible] game nod, their [illegible] muttered "let's [illegible]" and then trotted [illegible] which built up into [illegible] this:

In 16 contests [illegible] seven, Indiana [illegible] were ties.

Indiana has [illegible] rest.

The Hoosiers were [illegible] Huffman halfback [illegible] because of injuries [illegible] Minnesota game.

The Buckeyes have [illegible] their style of play within the week.

It has had a murderous schedule in the last fortnight.

And so on.

The expected crowd of 25,000 had in store a couple of 17 gun salutes for Governor Paul McNutt of Indiana and Governor George White of Ohio.

FORDHAM, ST. MARY'S IN HEADLINE BATTLE

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—The biggest intersectional football game of the day, bringing together Fordham's undefeated Rams and the St. Mary's Gaels of California, was the magnet for an expected crowd of 65,000, largest of the season in the east, at the Polo grounds today.

Despite the fact the huge invaders—their line averages 214 pounds—had been beaten twice, Fordham was conceded little better than an even chance to win and protect their perfect record. California and Southern California both tripped up the Gaels in close games but they remained one of the most formidable, as well as the biggest, grid outfits in the country.

THESE STARS WILL SHINE IN WEEK'S GRIDIRON CLASSICS

New York is favored this saturday with two great intersectional games. St. Mary's squad travels all the way from San Francisco for their annual meeting with Fordham while Tulane invades the metropolis to do battle with Colgate's great eleven. Grid interest in the Midwest centers largely in the clash between Illinois and Michigan at Champaign, Ill., with the experts picking Michigan to win.

WALKER CHALLENGE FAILS, ROSENBLOOM RETAINS RING CROWN

Mickey Near End of Fight Trail After Losing Title Battle.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—After 15 long years of trying in the resin [illegible] Mickey Walker, the toy bulldog from Perth Amboy, N. J., appeared [illegible] the [illegible] of his fighting career.

Mickey [illegible] failed to lift the light-heavyweight crown from the head of Maxie Rosenbloom in their [illegible] at Madison Square Garden last night, but he showed more than ever the toll that time has taken. It was the second straight defeat for the one time [illegible] welterweight and middleweight champion.

Walker, perhaps seeing oblivion ahead of him, put up his best all-around fight against the shifty Rosenbloom and the ex-champ won a [illegible] decision. But outside of a couple of [illegible] he got nowhere fast.

The referee and two judges [illegible] Referee Eddie [illegible] Walker nine rounds and the judges Charley Lynch and Jim Buckley giving Rosenbloom 11 of the 15 heats.

Rosenbloom rode the crest of the victory wave all the way, cuffing and slapping in his usual way.

The crowd of 10,000 most of them cheering for an old favorite, saw few traces of the Walker who won the middleweight title from Jack Britton in 1922.

The old spirit was still there in the 32 year old Walker but the speed and stamina were missing.

Rosenbloom weighed 173½, Walker 173.

ATLANTIC SEABOARD IS STORM CENTER OF TODAY'S GRID SKED

Fordham-St. Mary's Fray Leads, But Several Others Share Spotlight.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—The Atlantic seaboard was the [illegible] storm center today as the [illegible] far west and south pointed [illegible] heaviest fire of the season [illegible] the east's strongholds.

Granted top position both [illegible] the standpoint of importance [illegible] of drawing power was the battle [illegible] the Polo grounds here between Fordham's undefeated Rams [illegible] St. Mary's Gaels from California.

Ranking not far behind were [illegible] Tulane-Colgate, Navy-Notre Dame, Detroit-Holy Cross, Purdue-Carnegie Tech and George Washington-Tennessee contests while West Virginia, playing Marquette. And facing Coe college of Iowa, Pitt, tackling Centre of Kentucky, completed the intersectional [illegible]

St. Mary's ranked a slight favorite over Fordham. Notre Dame over Navy and Purdue over Carnegie, but in every other case the eastern representative either was the public choice or was rated no worse than even money.

But if these array of intersectional tests topped the program there were section contests of [illegible] importance and along the [illegible] In the east it was unbeaten Princeton against Brown, Cornell against Columbia, Yale against undefeated Duquesne and Penn against Lafayette.

The Big Ten program was topped by Illinois' attempt to halt the conquering drive of Michigan and Minnesota's effort to remain in the race as Northwestern's expert Chicago and Iowa deployed against Wisconsin and Iowa State.

Nebraska looked much too powerful for Missouri in the Big Six but Oklahoma and Kansas bobbed up in what looked like a close duel. Kansas State traveled to East Lansing to play Michigan State.

JEAN HARLOW STARS IN "BOMBSHELL" TO BE SHOWN AT PALACE

Jean Harlow, who has learned a lot since she played the role of the siren in "Hell's Angels," is starred in "Bombshell," the picture which will be shown three days at the Palace, beginning Sunday.

Lee Tracy, Franchot Tone and Frank Morgan, a pleasing array of actors, support the platinum-haired Miss Harlow.

"Bombshell" is another of the "inside" stories on Hollywood doings, and the critics have found it much better fare than its predecessors in this field, mostly because of Miss Harlow and Mr. Tracy. Miss Harlow stepped out a a sure-fire actress in her role in "Dinner at Eight

"POWER AND THE GLORY" AT OHIO FOUR DAYS

Hailed as one of the most distinguished pictures of the year is the Jesse L. Lasky production of "The Power and the Glory," which will be shown Sunday through Wednesday at the Ohio.

The picture brought Spencer Tracy to the fore and served as another big stride in Colleen Moore's comeback. "The Power and the Glory" has brought a new word to the talking picture vocabulary, "narratage." In this picture Ralph Morgan, an old man, sits down and tells his wife the story of Tracy's life from the time they were young men together. It might be defined, at least in this instance, as a complete spoken version of the story, coming into play in non-dialogue sequences and viewed from off-screen as the reflections of one of the principal characters.

Helen Vinson and Clifford Jones carry important roles. William S. Howard directed the picture from a story created by Preston Sturges.

MARION TO SHOW "SOLITAIRE MAN"

Four well-known actors made "Solitaire Man," which the Marion will present Sunday and Monday. May Robson, who will be long remembered as "Apple Annie" in "Lady for a Day," Lionel Atwill, Mary Boland and the English actor, Herbert Marshall, play the leading roles.

TWO PICTURES AT STATE

Preston Foster and Peggy Shannon head the cast of "Devil's Mate" which will be shown Sunday and Monday at the State on a double bill with a Buck Jones western, "Forbidden Trail." There will be a midnight showing tonight. "Devil's Mate" is a story of up-to-date crime and detection, with a mystery element predominating.

CORN PRICES SHOOT HIGHER

Government Sponsored Buying Held Responsible; Wheat Is Unchanged.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Nov. 4—Corn prices ... skyward in the late dealings today.

A sudden jump in corn prices ... the market up more than 2 cents a bushel in a few minutes. The chief apparent influence was news of export sales of United States corn, together with word that the United States government's corn loan plans would be greatly broadened.

Large purchases of corn today were credited to government sponsored sources. It was intimated that the favorable position of the dollar was having an effect on foreign trade.

Corn closed strong at the day's top level, ⅞@1 cents above yesterday's finish, wheat unchanged to ½ cent lower, oats unchanged to ¼ up, and provisions varying from 10 cents decline to a rise of 12 cents.

DURBIN VICTORIOUS OVER ADA FACTION

Democratic Executive Committee Controlled by Leader Names Judges.

Special to The Star

KENTON, Nov. 4—The Hardin county Democratic executive committee, W. W. Durbin reorganized, won another victory in its fight for discipline the anti-Durbin faction at Ada this week when Secretary of State George S. Myers voted with Democratic members of the Hardin county election board to accept names of precinct judges and clerks offered by the county party organization and not by the individual party committeemen.

Ada Democrat interests last year, elected anti-Durbin committeemen, and voted opposition to Durbin policies and appointees.

When their committeemen presented recommendations this year the Democratic members of the elections board turned thumbs down on the recommended precinct judges and clerks and accepted a list presented by the Hardin county Democratic executive committee. Republican members voted to accept the list sent in by Ada central committee men. The secretary of state was called to break the deadlock.

FIRE CAUSES $300 DAMAGE TO HOUSE

Damage estimated at $300 was caused today about 8:30 a. m. when fire broke out in a front first-floor room in the Mrs. Martha J. Pearson residence at 637 Cleveland avenue, Fire Chief T. J. McFarland reported.

The room was extensively damaged, with a bed, rug, and other furnishings destroyed and the siding and walls of the room damaged by fire and smoke.

Origin of the fire, Chief McFarland said, is attributed to a fire in a gas stove, which is thought to have ignited a trunk near the stove.

Firemen from Company No. 1 were called and extinguished the blaze before it spread to other rooms of the house.

F. A. Sparks, son-in-law of Mrs. Pearson, occupies the residence with her.

The parsonage of the Salem Evangelical church at 232 East Church street was the scene of a "scare" alarm yesterday when smoke and soot from a chimney which was being "burned out" filled a downstairs room with smoke. The chief's car was sent on the call. The parsonage is occupied by Rev. H. C. Ahrens and his family.
